It's a good start, what about something saying if a guide is caught breaking the law, then it can also impact the outfitters ability to renew their license? Outfitters have been letting their guides take the fall so the boss doesn't get in trouble. This will encourage the outfitter to make sure their guides are following the rules.

Aside from the dirty politics that played out with this bill: I.e. a senator consulting an outfitter on how to write the bill into their favor. Plus swapping the bill from hb153 to sb149 without anyone knowing just so it would pass.

This bill is a big outfitter bill. I do however support the division taking over licensing. You have outfitters who have served prison time and DOPL shows no disciplinary actions on his outfitter license.

You just crippled small outfitters. A 2000% increase for licensing PRIOR to any revenue collected or hunts booked. I proposed that you collect a small upfront processing fee $50-100 and then collect post use just the same as Land Use fees.. you could have done a % based collection or something similar to a tax bracket. 0-4 hunts per year = $500 5-10 hunts per year = $1000, etc.. the more volume, the more you pay. I should not be paying the same fees as Doyle moss when I guide 2-3 hunts per year. My whole purpose was to provide guiding services to the average Joe who waited 25+ years to draw. Not the governors tag, not conservation permits. You've now forced us to raise prices.

You did so by ignoring public input, skipping RAC's, the wildlife board, and allowed for Big outfitters to be consulted by politicians.

You also aren't requiring back ground checks!? This just looks like a money grab and not an actual productive way to provide better guide services in Utah.

We are coming up with traditional ways to hunt to make it a harder, low success rate hunt, Giving more opportunity. Guides and outfitters make money off of public land services by shooting the biggest animals..... it's becoming a point creep problem and a money problem.....more satisfaction would come from hunting on public land knowing you aren't competing with paid clients who pull the trigger without working for it....life isn't fair, but public land hunting allows the average joe to get out to enjoy the outdoors..... sooner or later your blue collar hard worker will stop hunting because it's crowded with 20 year old flat brimmers. Public lands become crowded when there is a price to be made.....

I don't agree with this because most of these hours are going to be from people that have helped with a conservation groups banquet that happens to land before the draws come out. I disagree with just being able to help set up a banquet and recieve any hours at all.

I do not like this proposal. All this does is force the smaller outfitters out. This is a part time deal for me. I only take a 2-3 clients a year at the most on a couple general season unit. With the bad dought we have had lately there are some years I don't take any clients. This will raise my up front cost 10x even before I know if any one of my clients actually draw a tag or not. I would STONGLY encourage the annual COR start on July 1st. This would allow some of the smaller outfitters to know if they are going to have any clients after the draw is done.
I really think this also needs to have a minimal fee upfront and a percentage based fee on how many people or how much an outfitter takes. This would be more consistent to how Special Use Permits are done by the federal land angencies and be more far to every outfitter.
